Shelburne, Mar. 29 (Special)—Mr. John Medill known locally as well as far and near as physical giant and gloryingin his strength came to be a great sufferer and tells his cure as follows;—

"I do not hesitate to speak of Dodd's Kidney Pills or anything else exactly as I find them. If a medicine cures me and if I think it will cure others why not say so?"

It is true I had been suffering for some time with Bladder trouble and learning of a cure made in a similar case, by Dodd's Kidney Pills I commenced using them.

In all I have used eighteen boxes and they have dissolved the stone and have entirely cured me of any sign of such difficulty. I do not hesitate to speak of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the highest terms of praise for I know of many persons who have been

JOURNEY IN A FLUME.

EXCITING RIDE FROM ICEBOUND SIERRAS TO SEMI-TROPICAL REGIONS.

In the San Joaquin Valley a Party of Three in a Small Boat Goes Down—Ice in the Upper Gorges—Oranges at the Vineyard Levels.

What would the tobogganists of the east say of a toboggan slide fifty long miles! Think of sliding down a chute that extends from arctic to semi-tropic regions—through snow-clad and ice-bound canons, around rocky fastnesses, over foaming cascades and rushing rivers, and then through vineyards and orange groves, and landing amid gardens of roses and lilies.

A half dozen localities on the Pacific coast—especially in California—afford opportunities for such slides. One of the flumes that several big lumber companies have constructed in different sections, all the way from Sanger, in Fresno County, California, to Salem, Oregon, is an example. These flumes have been built for conveying lumber from the towering Sierras to sawmills in the valleys below. They are from fifty to sixty-five miles long, and are built upon trestles varying in height from 20 to 120 feet. The chute is V-shaped and usually about a yard deep. The lumber is floated through it on water supplied from mountain streams, and the time consumed in a journey through the flues is from two to three hours, depending on the force and quantity of the water.

An invitation to make one of a party of three gentlemen to ride down through a lumber flume located at the southern end of the great San Joaquin Valley was eagerly accepted by the correspondent of The New York Times. The hour of starting was fixed at 8 on a January morning, and the place was the mountain headquarters of a lumber company. The guests were told to make themselves at home at the log house.

Early on the evening previous to the flume ride three gentlemen arrived at the headquarters. It had taken eight hours of hard driving with a team of mules to get there. The altitude is 7800 feet. Winter was everywhere in evidence, and it was the first taste any one in the party had had of an old fashioned winter season in some years.

The snow was so deep and hard that the lumbermen had been unable to work for several days. Ice covered every watercourse in the mountains, and a cold, frosty wind that sent the mercury below zero descended from the peaks that reared themselves 1000 feet higher. The night was passed at the company's building, and with a big breakfast the three flume travelers were ready for the journey.

The flume boat in which the party was to be floated down the chute was brought forth. It was a crude affair, eight feet long, V-shaped to conform to the trough, made of boards easily nailed to gether, and the seats were short boards adjusted between the sides of the craft. Two lumbermen held the boat, while the travelers, bundled in heavy overcoats, and with grim resolution, stepped cautiously into it.

"Hold on tight, boys;" "Let her go;" "Good-bye," "Good-bye," were shouted from the group of lumbermen as the boat started down the flume. A thin coating of ice glazed the surface of the flume timbers for the first ten miles, so that the craft sped forward with unusual swiftness.

The boat gathered momentum every second. Pine trees bending with snow, boulders strewn along the canon, and immense projecting chunks of ice and granite approached and darted past in a twinkling. There was no time to look to the right or left. Not a word was spoken. It seemed as if not even a breath was drawn. All eyes were set dead ahead, and all hands clutched the board seats with a vise-like grip.

But there was ample time for startling ideas. What if a chunk of the ledges had torn away the flume just beyond that sharp bend? What if a plank were loose away down near that redwood tree? What a frightful fall

Samuel Winters and wife, near Selby, were the guests at his father's, Thos Winters, Friday evening.

Albert Brown, who has been laid up with rheumatism, is convalescent.

David Doyle has gone to J. Allison's to work. Some one will likely miss you.

George Somers intends working for John McAlister for the season.

W. Andrew McCullough spent Sunday the guest of Nelson Frizzell.

Mary Doyle is visiting down east again. Be careful Mary, you might take a wrong step.

Carrie Winters is visiting at Mr. Robert McCormick's, Selby, for a few days.

Eddie Hewitt was the guest of E. Doyle on Sunday.

Wm. Provins is engaged erecting a new addition to Jas. Doyle's house.

Several attended the cheese meeting at Forest Mills on Tuesday night.

Hugh McCormick was calling on friends here.

Mr. David Winters has sued the Richmond and Tyendinaga councils for damages done to his cutter and horse which happened some time ago when his son was driving across the bridge and the horse took a tumble in the river.

Thomas Winters and wife spent last Tuesday visiting friends at Empey Hill.

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY.

Now we hear this foolish question asked "is this muddy enough for you?"

Very poor sap weather, is the verdict of those who have undertaken to make sugar.

Ed Valleau, High Shore, is remodeling the interior of his house.

Frank Gordon, Picton, has accepted a situation as travelling salesman for a surgical instrument firm in Detroit, and has started "on his road."

The bay is free from ice between Northport and Deseronto, and the ferry boat has commenced operations for the season.

On Tuesday evening, March 23rd, a merry company with well filled baskets, assembled at the residence of Mr. Charles McDonald Benson's, and gave him a good old fashioned surprise. It was Mr. McDonald's birthday anniversary, and we are sure he will remember this one, as an unexpected rain storm prevented an early departure of his guests and they were obliged to remain until daylight.

A certain and thrifty and progressive farmer of this county is running imbued with the idea that there is money in hens. He set a large hen house furnished with an incubator, and with many improvements, placed two hundred eggs in the incubator and awaited results. Owing to some mismanagement in regulating the temperature the small number of seven chickens rewarded his labors. A visitor to the farm in hearing of the venture, contemptuously remarked of the hen house, and lent that with an old hen.

The lecture and entertainment held on the evening of the 25th instant in the church of St. Vincent de Paul, Deseronto, realized the handsome sum of $141.75. Rev. Father Hogan has expressed himself as grateful for the success of the event and the liberal patronage extended by all classes and denominations.

A. S. Kimmerly since the summer rate of freight has come is able to give his many customers the finest re cleaned Timothy Seed at $1.25 per bushel. I have just received a car of that Mammoth Southern Sweet Corn, price lower than ever before. One car of bran to be sold cheap. All kinds garden seed in stock. ### The Growth of London

London's population continues to increase rapidly, but recent census figures reveal a change in the character of this growth which has both surprised and puzzled the English statisticians. Up to times comparatively recent the city's increase was chiefly at the expense of the country districts and of other lands, the number of births within the metropolitan limits, when not less than the number of deaths, being not nearly enough in excess of it to account for the annual increment. Thus, in the period of 1871-80, the increase in population was more than 100,000 in excess of the births over the deaths. In the years 1881-90, however, the balance was the other way, the addition to the population being nearly 118,000 less than the natural increase. In the period of 1891-95, the excess of births over deaths was 230,000, but the actual increase in the population was slightly less than 200,000. From these figures it appears either that London-born children are lodged rock or strike a loosened spike, or run over a stray piece of timber in the flume? Each remembered all the stories he had heard of mortal accidents in these flumes.

For seven miles the party traveled at the rate of a mile in eighty or ninety seconds. The wind howled about their ears and beat against their faces and chests. Heavy overcoats were none too heavy. The cold water spattered in their faces, and the frosty air darted down their backs. The picturesque scenery had scant attention.

The first twenty minutes of the trip were by far the most risky and exciting. By that time the party was about eight miles in the canon, where the grade of the trough ran easier, and was sailing at the rate of a mile in four minutes. The air came less bleak and penetrating. The altitude was about 4000 feet, and the last signs of the ice and snow were being left behind.

In a half hour more the mouth of the canon was almost reached. The flume ran higher, and the canon stream that had roared as it gurgled and bounded over rocks and among boulders could scarcely be heard.

Suddenly the flume turned to the left, and several gorges hundreds of feet deep were crossed. The timbers that support the flume looked slender and insecure, and the giant walls of granite that stood straight up added to the grandeur of the scene.

Another bend in the flume, and, skirting a spur of foothills, the party glided out of the canon. A vista of some thirty miles stretched before their eyes. This is a part of the San Joaquin Valley, from which the trestle may be seen, like a huge silvery serpent lying among the foothills. Here the trough runs at some 100 feet above the ground, and the feeling as the greater elevation from the earth is reached is similar to that of the aeronaut.

The sound of the plunging, turbulent mountain stream below came to our ears, and the fresh, clear air of morning was delightful. Undulating foothills, immense sweeps of grazing and ranch land, here and there hundreds of cattle could be seen.

The heavy overcoats were laid aside as the craft moved on. Several little villages were passed, then the orchards of the valley appeared ahead, and in a few minutes more the party was floated above the fruitgrowers' homes and over their orchards of pears, prunes, peaches and oranges. Men were busy among rows of trees, and the dark glossy foliage of the orchards added another element of beauty to the scene. Later raisin grape vineyards that reach in every direction and cover an area of hundreds of acres were passed, and the travelers looked down from an elevation of eighty feet upon a score or more of Chinamen at work pruning the grape vines.

Then came a wide curve in the flume. The boat swept gracefully around it. Off to the west was a collection of large buildings and mammoth piles of lumber, the terminus of the flume. The trestle was lower and the boat floated within thirty feet of the ground.

The flume was almost level, and except for the impetus given further back, there would be very little motion to the water. Gradually the flow ceased and the craft and its passengers moved at a walking pace up to the docks of the lumber company's big mills. A workman seized one side of the boat and held it while the men disembarked.

A Blind Woman's Talents

Mlle. Melaine de Salignac, a blind woman, mentioned at considerable length by Diderot, was able to tell, by the impression of the air, whether it was fine or cloudy, whether she was in an open place or a street, and whether the street was open at the end, says an exchange. Having once gone over a house, she became so well acquainted with the different parts as to be able to warn others of any danger they were exposed to by the existence of a step or the lowness of a door. She could thread the smallest needle with great dexterity and could execute every sort of needlework. She understood music, geography, geometry and wrote with a pin, by pricking a sheet of paper stretched on a frame, and read what she had written by feeling the pin marks on the other side of the paper.

Heavy Losses and No Insurance.

The women of Canada lose thousands of dollars every year by having valuable garments and goods ruined by adulterated and imitation package dyes.

There being no security or insurance against losses resulting from spurious and deceptive dyes, defrauded women cannot claim damages or expect to be recouped by the makers of the common dyes.

Let it be understood perfectly that every package of Diamond Dyes is fully warranted to do what is promised for it.

The manufacturers of Diamond Dyes are the only responsible makers in the world of package dyes for home dyeing, and they succeed because their dyes are pure, strong, bright and never fading, and the easiest to use.

Messrs. McCulloch, Wilson and Bowerman of the N. C. I. accompanied by a jolly load of young people came out here last Friday evening to debate with the Hawley boys on the subject resolved "That women should have equal franchise rights with men." The Hawley debators, Messrs. Allen, Anderson and McNeil had the affirmative side of the question. Mr. R. O. Cadman ably filled the chair and Messrs. W. H. Perry and C. W. Elliot acted in capacity of judges. The debators had studied the subject well and each side made a brilliant showing. We shall make special mention of Mr. Allen who by his unrefutable arguments made many points for the affirmative, and Mr. Wilson who by his impassioned antiloquence won the admiration of the ladies. After mature consideration the judges decided in favor of affirmative. Then after an enjoyable evening of pleasant instruction all took their several ways homeward. We would be glad to have the Napanee load come back at any time for they are jolly good fellows. We would advise them to bring a girl apiece next time.

Auctions in Japan.

There is little chance for fraud or complaint in the matter of conducting auction sales in Japan. Although there are not nearly so many sales held as in this country, officials of the cities have a way of conducting them much similar to our method of voting.

When an auction is to take place the goods or property is advertised for two weeks ahead. On the day of the sale each bidder writes his name and address and the amount of his bid for each lot on a slip of paper, which he carefully places in a box. When all the bids are in the auctioneer opens the box in the presence of the spectators, and, after examining, all the goods are declared the property of the highest bidder. By this system the American custom of owners bidding in property or goods would almost entirely disappear.—New York Journal.

FOR YOU! FOR ALL!

The Great Life-giver.

Paine's Celery Compound Removes Every Load and Burden.

It Is Foremost As a Spring Medicine.

It Makes Wondrous Cures.

The promise of a new and happier existence is personal and general. It is for you! It is for all!

Men and women, young and old, enter into the spring season with a variety of diseases that arise from a faulty or impaired nervous system. These ailments cause more sufferings and earlier deaths than all others, and that is why so much attention and prominence has been given to Paine's Celery Compound.

Of all medicines, Paine's Celery Compound stands first as a rapid and sure cure for all nerve diseases such as nervous debility, neuralgia, rheumatism and sciatica. Sleeplessness, nervousness and dyspepsia originate from an imperfect condition of the nervous system, and a perfect and permanent cure can only be looked for from Paine's Celery Compound.

In the spring season, when the blood is impure, thin and impoverished, Paine's Celery Compound is the agent of life that quickly cleanses and purifies the life stream, bringing strength, vigor and robustness.

The use of one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound will quickly convince the sufferer that he or she has truly laid hold of a spring medicine that leads to health and a new life. Thousands in the past have thrown aside their ills and troubles; you may do the same if you get the medicine that cures. Paine's Celery Compound, and it alone, can meet your expectations. Take no other medicine from your dealer, no matter how strongly he may recommend it.

AS UNCALLED FOR ATTACK.

The Napanee Star of last week has an unfair and unjust attack on Sir. Oliver Mowat and the Hon. A. S. Hardy in connection with liquor license legislation. Briefly stated, Sir Oliver is stigmatised as a hypocrite, so far as prohibition is concerned. To use the writer's own words, "he has humbugged the prohibitionists for many years until much contempt for the stability and honesty of the prohibition movement has been engendered," etc., etc.

Then Premier Hardy is represented that he "evidently thinks that the temperance people have allowed themselves to be humbugged so long that they have lost all power to do him harm." The Star does not pretend to be an advocate of prohibition, but it is annoyed that Sir Oliver and Mr. Hardy have not before this given the country a much more stringent prohibition law. It claims that the prohibitionists should have "long ago dashed Mowat's Government into atoms, if for no other reason than to give a convincing object lesson, not only to the so-called Reform party, which if it so willed, could place on the statute book an effective law to carry out the wishes of the temperance people, within three weeks, but it could have taught a lesson to the Conservative party which it has never learned and apparently has not the slightest disposition to learn."

So sar as Sir Oliver is concerned it is not necessary for HIM to go to such a source for a character as an honest man. Even the late Sir John Macdonald, not long before his death, did not hesitate to declare that Sir Oliver was an honest and well meaning man. Since this session of the Ontario legislature Mr. Whitney, the present Conservative leader, has declared the same thing. The great majority of the electors of Ontario have, over and over again within the past twenty-five years, declared their confidence in him as in no other public man in this province.

As a prohibitionist Sir Oliver has long been well known and trusted by the temperance people. Over forty years ago, when temperance laws were much less popular than now, Sir Oliver first became a candidate for Ontario County and then declared for prohibition. He has maintained the same position ever since. When the Dunkin Act was voted on in Toronto, away back in the sixties, he was nearly the only man of much public prominence who came forward boldly and voted for it. He has maintained that position ever since.

During the last twenty years Sir Oliver's government, of which Hon. Mr. Hardy has been nearly all the time a prominent member, has amended the licence laws of this province no less than ten times, and each amendment has been a decided step in advance. No backward step has ever been taken. We have now the best enforced license laws of any province in this whole Dominion. Under the provisions of the Reform Government license laws the total number of licenses in this Province has been reduced from 6,185 in 1874 to 3,132 last year. The number of taverns from 4,793 to 2,779, and we all know that the class of licensed taverns has been vastly improved. The number of licensed liquor shops has been reduced from 1,307 down to 327 in the whole province. In this entire county but one license shop remains. Wholesale licenses have been reduced just one half in number. Steamboat liquor licenses, which were plentiful years ago, have been cut off altogether, not one has been granted in the last five years. The number of prisoners committed for drunkenness in the jails of this province has been reduced from 4,032 in 1877 to only 1,907 in 1896. Not one drunken man is now seen in this county, or town, where ten could be seen twenty-

ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL AND EXPERIMENTAL UNION.

CO-OPERATIVE EXPERIMENTS IN AGRICULTURE

Upwards of 1000 varieties of farm crops have been tested in the Experimental Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, within the past eleven years, and six hundred of them have been grown for at least five years in succession. Nearly all the Canadian sorts and several hundred new varieties imported by the Experimental Department from different parts of Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, and the United States have beed included in these carefully conducted experiments. Some of the new varieties have done exceptionally well and have already been distributed over Ontario, through the medium of the Experimental Union, with very gratifying results. The Siberian Oats, Mandscheuri Barley, Herison Bearded Spring Wheat, and the Cloud's Early Yellow Dent, Mammoth Cuban, Wisconsin Earliest White Dent, and Salzer's North Dokota varieties of corn, which are now becoming so popular in Ontario, were imported by the Experimental Department and after being well tested were distributed in small quantities.

The present system of co-operative experimental work in agriculture was started in 1886 with 60 plots, which were situated on twelve different farms in Ontario. Since that date, however, the work has increased from year to year and in 1896 there were 11,124 plots, which were situated on 2,260 farms. We are again prepared to distribute material for co-operative experiments with fertilizers, fodder crops, roots, grains, grasses, and clovers.

Interested persons in Ontario who wish to join in the work, may elect any one of the experiments for 1897 and inform the director at once of the choice made. All materials will be furnished entirely free of charge to each applicant, but he will be expected to conduct the test according to the instructions sent with the seeds, and to report the results of his test as soon as possible after harvest.

LIST OF EXPERIMENTS FOR 1897.

1. Testing nitrate of soda, superphosphate, muriate of potash, mixture, and no manure with corn.
2. Testing nitrate of soda, superphosphate, muriate of potash, mixture, and no manure with mangels.
3. Testing six leading varieties of fodder corn.
4. Growing three Leguminous crops for green fodder.
5. Growing three mixtures of grain for green fodder.
6. Testing four varieties of grasses for hay.
7. Testing four varieties of clover for hay.
8. Testing three varieties of buckwheat.
9. Testing four varieties of spring wheat.
10. Testing four varieties of Barley.
11. Testing five varieties of oats.
12. Testing four varieties of peas.
13. Testing three varieties of beans.
14. Testing five varieties of carrots.
15. Testing five varieties of mangels.
16. Testing four varieties of Turnips.

Material for either No. 1 or No. 2 experiment will be sent by express, and for each of the others it will be forwarded by mail. All fertilizers and seeds will be sent in good time for spring seeding, providing the applications are received at an early date. The supply of material being limited, those who apply first will be surest of obtaining the desired outfit. It might be well for each applicant to make a second choice for fear the first could not be granted.

Particular varieties need not be mentioned as all the kinds to be distributed are those which have done exceptionally well upon the trial plots in the Experimental Department.

NAPANEE, FRIDAY, APRIL 2 d, 1897.

THE present iniquitous franchise act will be repealed this session.

IN the new tariff any concessions granted to the mother country will meet with the approval of the Canadian people.

THE school settlement remains settled and Mgr. Merry del Val, Papal Ablegate, has arrived in Canada to settle the unsettlers.

IN framing our tariff the doctrine of retaliation should find no place. Adopt the policy calculated to promote the best interests of Canada.

AN alien labor bill will be introduced during this session and will in all probability become law. A taste of their own medicine will go a long way towards hammering a little sense into the heads of the peanut politicians of the American Republic.

THE DINGLEY BILL will have the effect of directing our trade to the British market, and once the trade relationship between Canada and the mother country becomes firmly established by the means of cold storage no amount of concessions on the part of the United States will divert it back into that channel.

himself into eternity will it be necessary for the Crown to call in the services of Prof. Radcliffe to put the hypnotist to sleep in order to protect the public from fool experiments?

THE revision of the tariff which will take place during the present session of Parliament may not be a very sweeping one. The maladministration and corruption of the preceeding Government left a legacy of debt and obligation in its wake that cannot be ignored, which will render a sweeping reduction impossible at present. The return to a revenue tariff basis must of necessity be by gradual stages. The inequalities of the N. P. tariff, designed not for the purposes of revenue, but to place money in the pockets of a few favored individuals will be abolished and the mouldering branches of a pernicious fiscal policy will be lopped off as rapidly as the exigencies of existing conditions will permit.

IN his inaugural address Mayor Ward made a brief reference to the need of action looking towards the improvement of our roads, both in the town and country. The Warden of the county at the January session also referred to the Good Roads Question, and the advisability of purchasing improved road making machinery was the subject of a lengthy discussion by the members of the County Council. This is a live question and one that demands the consideration of every ratepayer. We hope the municipal councils throughout the county will take the matter up and institute comparison. In counties and townships where roadmaking machinery has been introduced it has been found that it entails a big saving in time, labor and money, besides giving better roads. We understand that several townships in Lennox are contemplating purchasing road making machinery and Napanee should not be behind in this matter. Mayor Ward's suggestion that A. W. Campbell, Provincial Road Instructor, should be invited to visit this county and give a series of addresses on the subject is a good one and cannot be acted upon too soon. A visit from Mr. Campbell would give a stimulus to the movement it seems much in need of at present. Mr. Campbell is employed by the Ontario Government and his services would entail no expense upon either the town or the county. Our roads are certainly in a reprehensible condition and any movement towards their improvement should be welcomed by all. We would be pleased to receive the views of our readers upon the "Good Roads Question."

five years ago, and seldom, if ever, does a bar-room row or fight occur now, while we all know they were of very common occurrence before the existing license laws came into force. Indeed, under the existing administration, should one of the old time drunken rows occur a renewal of license could not be obtained. We all know, too, that unlicensed selling has been as completely stamped out as it ever can be, while years ago "shebeens" were quite common all over our county. And yet we are now told by our "Star" that it is "rank hypocrisy for anyone to ascribe any credit therefor to any administration."

It might serve Tory purposes very well no doubt to endeavor to induce the temperance people to now unite to "dash the government to atoms," but what would the country gain by it, from a temperance stand point? We all know how MUCH the Reform Government at Toronto has done in the way of temperance legislation within the last twenty years. We all know how LITTLE the Conservative Government at Ottawa has done in the same direction during the same time. The hope of the country lies in a temperate people. The hope of the temperance people lies in the Liberal party These facts are too well-known to be ignored.

Here are some of the gains to be counted on in connection with the amended license bill of the present Ontario Government.

1 The number of licenses in the province will be reduced at once by at least 150, and the 80 saloon licenses now in the various cities will soon all disappear. Each municipal council may every year reduce the number where the people demand it.

2 All such druggists as practiced evading the law will be more restricted in future.

3 No sales of liquor will be allowed to any young man under 21 years of age, and such will not even be allowed to loiter about licensed premises, under penalty of a fine. Many parents will thank the government, and thank God for this.

4 All licensed bar-rooms in the country must be closed not later than 10 o'clock and in towns and cities at 11. The local authorities are empowered to require them closed at still earlier hours. Anyone convicted three times in a year of selling on Sundays or during prohibited hours will forfeit his license and will not be eligible to receive another license for three years.

5 In future no new license shall be granted within 300 feet of any church, or school, and licenses can be removed from any residential district if a majority of the electors in the district so desire.

6 The way is made more clear for the taxpayers of any town or township to prohibit the issue of any licences in their municipality, if a majority so desire.

And yet, in the face of just such amendments, the temperance people are seriously advised to "smash the government to atoms," and make room for whom———? Very few intelligent men of that class will guide their course by SUCH a Star. FAIR PLAY.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Act upon the Female Organs as well as upon the Kidneys—Many a Woman suffers needlessly.

Women suffer more than men. From the time a girl-child turns the corner into womanhood, she has more troubles than men ever dream of. We look upon women as weak and fragile but considering what they endure they are stronger by far.

Women suffer many times more than they need to. Partly because they don't know what ails them at first ; then because they are ashamed to tell a doctor ; latterly because they hate to be a continual source of expense to their husbands.

"Female Weaknesses" are what we term the diseases peculiar to the female sex. They are often confounded with female Kidney troubles, and Kidney troubles are often mistaken for other troubles. All those delicate organs are closely connected. What affects one affects the others.

What cures one, cures the others, too. DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS which are a sovereign cure for all Kidney ills, act to regulate and control the female organs and to relieve their difficulties. This is worth while for every woman to remember.

Mrs. Lucy Crabbe, Chambers P. O., says:—"For years I was a sufferer from weakness peculiar to my sex, combined with kidney trouble from all of which I was completely cured by two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Mrs. Elmena Ady, Walkerton, Ont. says:—"For a long time I have suffered from a complication of Kidney Trouble and Female Disease ; and am glad to say have no pain or ache since using Dodd's Kidney Pills."

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS, cure Kidney Disease and Female Weakness. Try Them. They are on sale at all druggists.

An Engineer's Story.

CYCLDOM

ARTHUR V. Linton and Rivierre, who finished first and second respectively Paris to Bordeaux road race, furnished one of the most remarkable contests ever recorded in the history of bicycle sport. After a hard run across the country for 369 miles, which they accomplished in 21 hours 17 minutes and 18 seconds, they raced into the Seine track in Paris one minute apart, and finished there in a cracking spurt before a crowd that was nearly wild with excitement. Linton finished first, but he did not ride the last four miles over the proscribed course. He lost the way, but reached the Siene track first and claimed the race. Rivierre, who came a moment later, had not seen Linton ahead of him on the path, and therefore he, also, claimed the race. The jury recognized that Linton, having left the track, was subject to disqualification, but recognizing also the merits of his ride, decided to make two awards, one to Linton and one to Rivierre.

Arthur Linton is a Welshman and a brother of Tom Linton, who recently broke the hour record on the Seine track by crowding thirty miles and 214 yards into sixty minutes' riding. Rivierre is a French rder of great ability.

The Paris-Bordeaux race is the greatest bicycle road event in Europe. It is moment. Put in a teaspoonful of ammonia and stir well. Soak the garment in this liquid for fifteen minutes or half an hour, and then souse and knead with the hands so as to squeeze out the dirt, but not vigourously enough to impair the garment's shape. Turn inside out and repeat the process. Pour off the water, which now contains all the dirt that was in the garment, and rinse very thoroughly in several waters—cold water, of course—using the same motions as before. Lift the garment from the rinsing water and lay it over a line or wooden frame to drip dry. When dry turn right side out and the job is done. Observe the following cautions: If the garment is one you care anything about wash it yourself. It will take but a few moments, and you will be amply repaid for the trouble. Put the soap in the water, not in the garment. Use good soap and not a very great deal of it. Use cold water. Don't wring or squeeze or pull. Dry wrong side out. Don't dry in the sun or wind or by the fire. (A shed or basement with a tub to catch the water, is usually better than outdoors.) Don't leave where it is cold enough to freeze. Don't iron. In case the garment is extremely dirty, use more ammonia and soak longer. If there are grease spots, after oaking remove the spots with ammonia, benzine or some kind of cleansing compound and then proceed as before described. I have an all-wool, close fitting jersey shirt that has been washed in this manner by myself just forty times, by actual count.—From L. A. W. Bulletin.

TO FURNISH A KITCHEN.

A List of Articles Necessary For a Well-Furnished Kitchen.

"The trouble with many housekeepers," said Mrs. Lemcke, one of the chief culinary apostles in New York, "is that they expect their cooks to get them up Delmonico dinners and either give them utensils and no materials, or materials and no utensils, or they expect the same dinner and give the cooks neither. You cannot cook unless you have the proper things to cook with.

"People will spend $100 for folderols for their parlors and begrudge every cent spent on the kitchen. Then if they do get a supply of kitchen utensils, they expect them to last forever. You have to keep buying for the kitchen all the time. Things will wear out. Even human beings can't last forever.

"First in the list of things necessary for the kitchen I should mention a nest of saucepans, from the largest to the smallest, seven or eight of them with handles.

to Banish Wine From Her Table.

"I was brought up to have wine on the table," said aristocratic Mrs. Nevers, "and I have kept up the custom in my household. Boys will never fall into the habit of drinking too much if they always have wine and brandy as free as water."

Nevertheless, Mrs. Nevers oldest son, Robert, the pride and hope of the family, did fall into dissolute ways, to the extreme mortification of his lady mother. Yet, when a great temperance reformer came to the city and Robert became interested in the meetings, Mrs. Nevers said to her beautiful only daughter, Alice:

"I hardly know whether I would rather have Robert a drunkard or have him speak at one of those common meetings."

"It is very common indeed to get drunk, mother," said Alice. "A few days ago as I was walking down Main street I saw my brother Robert on Exchange corner turning a hand-organ while a drunken negro danced."

"Alice!"

"I did, mother, and I held up my head and walked on, saying to myself, this is the beautiful fruit of the aristocratic old family custom of having wine at table."

"Alice!"

"I know you are horrified, mother, so was I, but that was what I said. I have inherited much of the family pride, and it would be the proudest day of my life to see Brother Robert leading this reform that is stirring the whole city."

"And have his name in the Times as one of the pledge signers, I suppose?"

"Certainly, mother."

"And have him lead Gospel temperance mass-meetings, and sing, perhaps?"

"Why not? If he is converted to the Gospel of Christ I hope he may have the courage to live it and proclaim it. He has a fine address and a melodious voice; how could he put them to better account than to become a leader of men?"

"I do not know, child, but I suppose my pride must be humbled."

The next morning's papers chronicled the fact that handsome Robert Nevers, the most popular young society man in the city, had been converted at the meetings, had signed the pledge, and spoken at some length and very eloquently from the platform.

"I shall go to-night," cried Alice with animation. "Say, boys," to her brothers, "let us all go and lead the applause. I never was so happy in my life;" and as her brother Robert at that moment entered the breakfast room perfectly sober for the first time for months, she threw herself into his arms.

"May I go to-night, Rob, and hear you speak, and tie on ribbons?"

"Certainly, darling, if mother is willing. I hardly expected a follower in my own family," replied the young man, much touched at this exhibition of genuine feeling.

"Oh, I am willing for anything," replied the mother.

"And we are all inclined to follow our lion in pledge-taking," said the younger brothers.

Robert shook hands with them all around without a word, and, turning to his mother, said:

"Then, mother, dear, you are willing to have me remove my quarters from here to the new temperance hotel?"

"For what reason, my son?"

"Because I can no longer sit at table where there is wine."

"So I am to be vanquished, am I, with all my traditions?"

"Not at all, I simply announce that I am to leave."

"When it comes to choosing between my son and wine, of course there is but one thing to be said—the wine must go."

"What misery we all might have been saved had you said that years ago, mother."

So the family custom gave way to the reign of temperance. Robert is still a temperance worker, and dainty Alice and her younger brothers are his staunch advocates and supporters.

The aged mother in her new peace of mind says:

"The Lord was good, to save my family, as a brand plucked from the burning, in spite of my determination to keep up the proud old family custom."

LIFE ON A RAILROAD CONDUCIVE TO DISEASE.

Mr. Wm. Taylor, of Kentville, Attacked With Kidney Trouble — So-Called Cures Proved Useless, But Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored His Health.

From the Kentville Advertiser.

There are very few employments more trying to the health than that of a railway engineer. The hours of labor are frequently long, meals irregular, and rest and sleep hurriedly snatched "between runs." One of the troubles which very frequently attacks railway trainmen is kidney disease, which up to a late period has been looked upon as a disease difficult, if not impossible, to totally cure. Although there exist numerous remedies claimed to be cures, the truth is that nothing had been found to successfully cope with this terrible disease until the advent of the now world-famed Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Chancing to hear one day that Mr. Wm. Taylor, a resident of this town, had been cured of kidney trouble through the agency of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a reporter called upon him at his home to hear from him personally what he thought of his cure. Mr. Taylor is an engineer on the Dominion Atlantic Railway, his run being between Halifax and Kentville, and he is one of the most popular drivers on the road. When asked by the reporter concerning his illness he said: "It was in the spring of 1896 that I had a severe attack of kidney trouble, brought on by continuous running on the road, and I suppose it is caused by the oscillation of the locomotive. It affected me but slightly at first, but gradually grew worse. I consulted a doctor and then tried two or three varieties of so called cures. Some helped me for a time, but after stopping the use of them I grew worse than ever. I had noticed numerous testimonials in the papers concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and reading of one cure that was almost indentical with my own I decided to give them a trial, and purchased four boxes at a cost of $2. But it was $2 well spent; for I was completely cured by the use of the pills, and have not been troubled with my kidneys since. I can therefore recommend them to others similarly afflicted.

The experience of years has proved that there is absolutely no disease due to a vitiated condition of the blood or shattered nerves, that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will not promptly cure, and those who are suffering from such troubles would avoid much misery and save money by promptly resorting to this treatment. Get the genuine Pink Pills every time and do not be persuaded to take an imitation or some other remedy from a dealer, who for the sake of the extra profit to himself, may say is "just as good." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure when other medicines fail.

Bronchitis Cured. Miss Maggie Griffin, 37 Metcalf Street, Toronto, writes: "After having bronchitis and cold so badly that I could hardly speak, and could not find any remedy to relieve me, I decided to try Norway Pine Syrup. It made a complete cure, and I highly recommend it to all.

Paris Le Velo, and the entry list this year was the best ever secured. It included all the principal exponents of a shade over twenty-five miles was ridlong distance riding in Europe, among them Fischer, the German, Linton, Neason, Carlisle and Hunt from England, Rivierre, The, Bretonnet and others from France.

The start was from Bordeaux, thirty-two out of fifty-six entrants going out on the run. The speed was terrific from the start, as is proved by the fact that den in the first hour, and that the first 100 miles only occupied 4.49. Linton and Fischer, the German rider, who was the general favorite for the event, were then in front, but, shortly afterward Fischer was unfortunately brought down by a dog and had to give up. Linton went on, closely pursued by Rivierre, who, riding splendidly to time table, caught him and passed him at Tours, 325 miles, ridden in 10.40. At this point George Hunt, being ill, had to give up.

Rivierre seemed all over a winner. Linton was "fagged," but with a courage which was truly admirable, the Welsh rider came up again, passing Rivierre just four miles from home. Here he, or rather his pacemakers, made a mistake, and left the official road, while Rivierre kept to it. However, Linton came in at the Seine track, where the race finished, and, riding two laps as prescribed, dismounted. Rivierre finished one minute behind, and at once lodged a protest against the winner. The was third, and the Liverpool rider, Neason, who rode a splendid race, was fourth. The previous record, 24.12.15, was made last year by Gerger, who, however, finished seventh on this occasion.

The first eight riders finished in this order:

| | H. | M. | S. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Linton, Eng'and | 21 | 17 | 18 |
| Rivierre, France | 21 | 18 | 20 |
| The, France | 22 | 12 | 40 |
| Neason, England | 23 | 9 | 45 |
| Cording, Holland | 23 | 28 | 30 |
| Carlsle, England | 23 | 48 | 40 |
| Gerger, Austria | 23 | 58 | 50 |
| Bretonnet, France | 25 | 47 | 35 |

The race this year was the best ever run over the Paris-Bordeaux course from all points of view. The entry list was better, the race better contested, and the time is better than in any of the former events.

well, and a ham boiler also of iron. The iron is cheaper. There must be three frying pans—the iron are better than other kinds—large, medium, and small; two double boilers, a one and a two quart, or a pint and a quart, according to the size of the family. For bread pans I like the round ones which fold over. It takes a little longer to make the bread in them. If this kind is not used, there must be two brick pans. There must be six round pans for layer cake, I use those for fluted edges. The cake comes out of them without any difficulty, and I think they are prettier than those with plain edges.

"There must be two fluted forms with a tube in the centre for wine babas," she went on presently, "small tins for wine cake, timbal molds, one dozen; a set of cutters for cake, biscuit, and puff paste, round or fluted—I prefer the round. There must be a nest of vegetable cutters and two small paint brushes to brush different dishes over with butter.

"You will need one-half dozen small wooden spoons, and this is the proper kind." The spoon that Mrs. Lemcke exhibited had a bowl flat and rather square in shape, and from the shallowness of the bowl more like a paddle than a spoon. "These are excellent for beating cake. Infinitely superior to the regular spoons. I have mine made for me. They have had them in the stores, but there was no demand for them, and they have not been kept in stock. They must be of assorted sizes. There must be at least eight mixing bowls of stone ware; the yellow is as good as the white. There must be one or two jelly forms of tin, measuring cups—a quart, pint, one-half pint and gill, and a small tea scale, with weights from one-quarter to a pound.

"The preserving kettle can be of steel or of imported blueware. You will need one-half dozen shallow tin pans, 1 inch deep, 11 inches long, and 5 inches wide, for coffee cake, puff paste, cookies, etc., and two square pans for molasses cake. The frying kettle of iron can be bought with the sieve and all attached. The long covered fish kettle is provided with a drainer. Of knives and forks there must be half a dozen of each, a broiler, a toaster and a colander.

There must be one soup and one sauce strainer, a nutmeg grater, lemon squeezer, ladle for dipping soups, pudding forms with a tube in the centre of each, two pudding pans for rice and other puddings, two deep dishes for chicken pie, four pie plates, a large and small roasting pan, molding pan, and board and rolling pin, three wooden buckets for flour, powdered and granulated sugar, a chopping board and a chopping bowl and knife.

"A carving knife must be included and a large fish knife. The latter are used for many things, chopping, cutting up, etc. There must be half a dozen common plates, two cups and saucers, and other little utensils. There will be skimmers, half a dozen tablespoons, half a dozen teaspoons, a funned, medium-sized, of tin; an egg beater, little scalloped tin molds for cake, tin scoops for flour and sugar."

"The bread and cake box will be of tin. There must be spice boxes and a nest of boxes for rice, raisins, etc. The salt box should hang on the wall, and there must be a vinegar jug and a molasses jug. A meat grinder is very important for Hamburger steaks, and preparing forcemeats. An ice cream freezer that will hold two quarts will be valuable. I like an odorless ice chest.

"That will be a satisfactory outfit for a family of six persons."

What Folks Talk About.

A certain physician of this city who never neglects an opportunity to study the traits of the people among whom his business takes him, has been making some observations recently that may serve as a basis for estimating the character of the average modern American.

"I have to travel on street-cars a good deal," the physician said in explaining his course of procedure, "and I hear all kinds of people talk. A short time ago I thought I would keep a record of the words most frequently used within my hearing by people of all classes.

"I omit names, profanity and vulgarity, but otherwise this list, which represents one week's street car conversation, is absolutely correct. Here then is a summary of what married men talk about:

"Dollars mentioned within my hearing, 497 times; business, 95; money, 206; dollar, 194; stocks, 163; bonds, 152; job, 81; son, 63; daughter, 11; wife, 4; literature, 0; music, 0; art, 0.

"Married women: She, 409; party, 326; dress, 324; splendid, 316; dollars, 294; trimming, 187; cards, 151; prize, 151; society, 130; baby, 59; perfectly awful, 46; doctor, 43; medicine, 34; music, 6; literature, 0; art, 0.

Young men, unmarried: Corker, 502; daisy, 467; girl, 416; beaut, 391; fairy, 306; winner, 302; stunner, 284; hummer, 151; society, 130; baby, 2, 119; clothes, 84; weather, 62; rich, 60; lovely, 59; perfectly awful, 46; doctor; 43; medicine, 34; music, 6; literature, 0; art, 0.

"Young women, unmarried: Lovely, 509; just perfectly lovely, 491; horrid, 476; gorgeous, 463; fellow, 409; engaged, 387; dress, 371; stunning, 352; love, 295; party, 291; wear, 281; she, 206; opera, 108; ring, 31; mamma, 28; papa, 16; music, 9; mother, 1; picture, 1; poem, 1; art, 0.

"I intend," the doctor concluded, "to pursue this subject further, and may some day be able to give additional figures that will be interesting."—Cleveland Leader.

NANNY.

BY ANNIE L. WATSON.

Beside a little gurgling creek two children sat at play.

The boy was lame. One foot was twisted and the leg was short. The back bore the burden so hard to bear, a hump. The face was thin and pale and wore a sad beseeching look, yet not a tinge of discontent lingered in those deep blue eyes.

The other child was one of nature's pets. Every curve was perfect. Eyes of laughing brown flashed and sparkled a dangerous rivalry with the shining waters of the brook. Her head was covered with clustering curls of reddish brown, and nothing else.

They had sat beside the stream since early morning playing with a most peculiar plaything—a diminutive mill. Wheels, saws and belts were perfect, the product of their own little hands.

"I will add a new saw to-morrow, Nanny. Then our mill will be complete."

"But, Ted, it is all nice now."

"Yes, nice, but not finished; besides what would we do if we did not whittle?"

"Quarrel," replied the saucy Nanny. "We wil lnever quarrel, will we, Nanny?" said Ted, looking lovingly into the mirthful eyes of his little friend.

"No, Ted," she answered, laying her hand on his head, while tender pity softened the mischievous face. "Never, you will always be my Ted."

Crash! A big stone fell crashing through the little mill, splintering its tiny wheels and saws, snapping the dainty belts of kid. The results of weeks of patient whittling, thoughtful ingenuity, lay at their feet a complete wreck.

"Well, Humphy, how do you like that? Come on and fight me now."

A painful flush dyed the pallid face of the lame boy as he encountered the insolent stare of the wretched bully.

"No! but I will!"

You can't go on losing flesh under ordinary conditions without the knowledge that something is wrong, either with digestion or nutrition. If the brain and nerves are not fed, they can't work. If the blood is not well supplied, it can't travel on its life journey through the body. Wasting is tearing down; Scott's Emulsion is building up. mill he had built for them. Ten years this one had taken and all was complete. All it lacked was Nanny's admiration.

"Nanny, would you mind if I took you to see the mill before the home? I love it so. I want to see your bonnie eyes light up with pleasure as you see how I have replaced the old one you and I whittled out and built."

Nanny's face flushed with pleasure.

"Ted, you are able to fight for yourself now. I would like best to see the mill first. It will soon rain and then we will go home."

They soon arrived at the mill with its piles of sweet-smelling pine lumber. As they approached the low, broad building, with its crashing, buzzing, whirring saws, mingled with the grinding, rumbling roar of the huge driving wheels, the water was turned off and the ponderous wheels sobbed themselves to sleep, as if they felt their usefulness diminished because they could not welcome their creator.

The men advanced in a body, and as Teddy and Nanny came under the roof there arose such a cheer that the wheels and saws grew envious. Their noise had been outnoised. Cheer after but back. Soon he lay on the grass kicking and creaming with pain, for Nanny had sat down upon him and was showering blows quick and fast on face and ears of the now thoroughly vanquished foe.

R. G. CARTER, G. A. BROWNE, H. B. SHERWOOD

"Now, will you call my Ted 'Humphy?' Will you? Will you? You coward! There, you can go now, and when you are ready for another whipping I'll be here."

Seating herself by Ted, she laughingly said: "Didn't I do it well?"

"Yes, dear. But don't fight for me. I am scarcely worth it."

Time passed on. These two, so queerly drawn together, continued their whittling. As they grew older they fashioned chairs and stools, and all the pretty things were kept in order by Nanny in their small workshop in the rear of their own small homes.

Nanny and Ted were neighbors. They were now advancing in years; he was 17, she 16. Both must soon choose the weapon they thought best to fight with for their living.

As yet they both were children.

"Nanny, I cannot work to-day; come down by the brook for a talk. Come, dear, do."

Walking slowly, she unconsciously tendered her never failing support to the poor weary companion of her whole childhood.

As they neared the brook, they met a stranger to their little village. As he passed, Nanny looked up and met the earnest, steadfast gaze of eyes deeply brown as her own. Her breath came fast, while over the dusky face of the stranger there passed a look of reverent admiration.

"Nanny, you tremble, dear. Are you cold?"

"No! Cold this lovely day; you think things, Teddy. I don't think I ever trembled in my life—only the day I licked Percy Grey; but that was with anger. Do you remember the little villain?"

They were now seated where their little mill had been destroyed. An ominous silence sealed both their lips. The brook laughed and flirted as gaily as ever. The leaves above whispered in low murmuring sounds. Why was Nanny silent?

"Teddy, who was that man with the eyes so dark?"

Her voice had caught the murmuring sweetness of the love whispering leaves. Her eyes had left their saucy dance to don the misty garb that love so dearly loves. Ted turned, and, looking in her face, knew the change.

'Twas Ted's turn to tremble. The poor, weak, crooked body quivered as cruel Cupid's arrow killed the boy to make the man. With a low moan of anguish, he threw himself on the ground, burying his head in Nanny's lap.

"Nanny, Nanny!" O, my Nanny! I am so crooked. I never know till now how hideous I am, Nanny!"

The last "Nanny" was the wail of a desolate soul.

Two little hands rested on the bowed head.

"Teddy, I love you," she whispered low.

Her little hands stroked gently the bowed head.

"Don't, Teddy, dear. Don't moan so; you are not crooked or hideous to me. We love each other now. Look up!"

Slipping her hand under his head, she turned the sorrowing face upward. Bending down she pressed her lips to his.

"I will wait for you dear. When you have a home for me I will be ready."

* * * * *

Eyes deeply, darkly brown looked into Nanny's, while a voice full and firm, lowered with the tremulousness of love, told all the love and passion that throbbed with his every pulse.

"Nanny, do you love me? Will you be my wife, little one?"

Nanny raised her eyes and looked calmly into those of him she knew she loved as woman loves but once. Joy, sweetly painful, shook her whole being as she answered low and soft:

"I am waiting for Teddy."

* * * * *

"I have come for you, Nanny."

"I am waiting for you, Ted, dear."

"I have the home all ready; but, my darling, are you quite sure you love me yet? Have none straighter and stronger sought your love and won it?"

"I have waited ten years for you, Teddy. I love you dearly. We will be so happy in our little home."

She again bent her head and pressed her lips to his.

A flush of glad thankfulness covered his pale, delicate features. Taking her hand in his, they talked long of all the days gone by, when she had fought his battles.

They were married quietly one bright morning and as they journeyed toward their new home, he told her of the new hand and signed silence.

"All to your places; my wife would see the mill!"

Soon the whirring, spinning saws and roaring wheels and clanking chains were shouting their welcome to Nanny with a greater fervor for their temperary restaint.

She inspected every machine that her Teddy had built and without aid.

"Oh, Teddy, I am so proud of you, my dear. Your mill is perfect."

"Nanny, say 'our mill.' Your tender, loving words by the brook, your gentle 'I love you, Teddy,' gave me the strength to build. Now we will go home; it is getting late." When they reached the road they paused to take one general view of the whole.

Crash, crash! A blinding flash of lightning lit the whole mill. Nanny saw every saw turn to fire. Then a splintering of the huge supporting posts, a rushing crowd of men as they fled from the mill. Soon the flames were seen creeping up around the gang saws. They spread with terrible rapidity among the oil-soaked flooring and stays.

Nanny stood terrified, watching the destruction.

"The boss! the boss!" shouted the men.

Nanny turned to see Teddy lying on the road beside her, dead.

Poor Teddy had been spared the sight of the destruction of his second mill.

Nanny again bent over Teddy's prostrate head. This time she whispered: "I was true to you, Teddy; I have been yours through life."

Rough hands lifted their light burden gently, as a woman her babe, and carried him to the beautiful home he had made for his Nanny.

He was laid to rest followed only by the men of his mill and Nanny.

* * * * *

Again brown eyes looked into Nanny's with a world of yearning. This time hers drooped heavy with their weight of love. The leaves above ceased their love songs to listen to Nanny's.

"I have waited for you, little one—twenty years. You were seventeen when you told me you were waiting for Teddy. Can you love me now?"

One of Nanny's old-time smiles tripped lightly over her dear face as she answered:

"Fall in love at thirty-seven? See my hair—white with the brown."

Coming near to view the white in the little bowed head, he raised her face to his. Looking earnestly into the clear depths of her eyes, he knew she had always loved him. Stooping he received from Nanny her first kiss of love.

Overhead the leaves clapped softly their little hands.

"Well, Mr. Softley, did you revenge yourself on Algy since that quarrel you had with him?"

"Yes, indeed. I ordered my man to be wude to his man when he meets him."—London Punch.

BATHS AND BATHING.

THE USE OF COLD WATER WILL DRIVE AWAY MANY ILLS.

Water is Not Injurious to the Skin—The Society Woman's Failings—Country Boys Did Not Have Towels—Use of Cold and Hot Baths.

"The subject of baths and bathing is one which has excited more pros and cons than almost any other relating to general health, said Mrs. Etta Morse Hudders in opening her lecture upon baths and bathing in the Brooklyn Institute. "In most subjects different authorities agree on vital points, but not in this. Dame Nature makes no mistakes, and when she provided so much water she intended it to be used, but there is no one subject so much misunderstood.

"There is no more popular failing than the idea that water is injurious to the skin. Properly used no more efficient and beneficial agent can be found. I will admit that improper use has injured the skin. I heard a prominent physical culturist say some years ago that if she had her way she would take every bath tub from the houses. I should say instead of that put another bath tub in and have two. Warm water should always be followed by cold in the bath, and if we could have a bath tub for hot and one for cold water it would simplify matters. The higher our civilization becomes and the more luxuriant our living the more we are in need of water.

"The society woman puts herself in opposition to nature, and there is no way by which she can retain her physical equilibrium better than by means of bathing. We know that a man who has been dissipated finds the Turkish bath one of the most effective means of recovering from the effects of his dissipation. All kinds of baths are taken to-day to preserve the health of the body. If we should consider all the baths used for medicinal purposes it would take us two or three lessons.

"Hot and cold water is available for all, and hot and cold baths can be taken by every one. The hot bath has been much abused. It is taken more than the cold probable because we are lazy and it is easy to take. We are indolent concerning measures for health and preventive treatment. We will take any amount of pains for our pleasure or for anything we wish in other directions, but when the care of our health is concerned we are negligent.

"Both men and women look upon cold water as very satisfactory for the hands and face, but the thought of using it for the whole body seems to send cold shivers down the spine. I never shock people so much as when I say they should take a daily cold bath.

"We should begin early with the cold bath and accustom our children to it. It is well to begin with them in the summer. Teach them to swim and they will enjoy it so much that they will not object to the bath at home later.

"Hot water for the bath should always be followed by cold. Take the subject of linen, and we will see the analogy. Do we every think of the reason we rinse our clothes in cold water. The hot water first softens and liberates the impurities and the cold water carries them off.

"There are four benefits we receive from the bath: First—It dissolves and frees the impurities of body and blood, second, it eliminates the waste matter; third, it improves circulation, and, fourth, it energizes the body, strengthens the resistance and increases vitality. Living in overheated houses, improperly clothed and improperly fed, our muscles become soft and we do not have proper resistance. Most disease comes to us from this lack of resistance.

"I remember, some time ago, before I had studied these subjects as I have now, I was staying in the country, and my boy, who had been out playing, came in and said that he had been in bathing with the boys, 'What did you do for towels?' I asked. 'Oh, we did not have any towels,' he answered; 'we put on our clothes and didn't need them.'

"I was frightened, and made him undress so that I could dry him properly. But I found him warm and dry and his skin in a normal condition. The hardy little country boys were in the habit of going into the water every day in that way, and sometimes more than once, and they never took cold.

There is no prettier sight in the world than that of a healthy, happy mother at play with her robust and rollicking baby. It is a sight entirely too infrequent. Too often the baby is puny and peevish and the mother sickly, fretful, and nervous. The woman who neglects to take proper care of herself and who therefore suffers from weakness and disease of the organs of womanhood cannot be healthy and amiable. Her children will be puny and ailing and happiness will pass by on the other side. There is no reason why every woman should not be the healthy, happy mother of robust and playful children if she will take the proper care of herself. Proper care means, first of all, proper medicine for her ailments.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will make any woman strong and well in a womanly way. It cures all weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism. It prepares a woman for motherhood. It insures the health of the baby. It makes parturition easy and nearly painless. Over 90,000 women have testified to its virtues, in writing. Druggists sell it and have no substitute "just as good." The druggist who tries to force something else upon you is not an honest man. He is trifling with your life and happiness for the sake of a greater profit to himself.

Mrs. F. E. Forgey, of Carns, Keyapaha, Co., Neb., writes: "I write to you again concerning my daughter, Mrs. D. Billings. She has taken two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She thinks the medicines did her a world of good. She was confined the 15th of February. Was sick about three hours, and now has a ten pound daughter. She got along nicely afterward. She says she never felt so well. She looks well and her complexion is clear."

The modern business world won't stand still or loiter to wait for the man who suffers from headaches, biliousness and dyspepsia caused by constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Of druggists.

POWERS OF PLANTS.

EVIDENCES SHOWING THAT THEY THINK FOR THEMSELVES.

From Fern Spores and Pot Mould to Mangroves and Mistletoe, the Marvellous Powers of Life Choice Are Shown—How It Manifests.

Plants, just as much as animals, are irritable beings, and like animals they may show irritability to varying degrees. Thus some plants may be described as mildly irritable. Every plant has to look after its feeding. Green plants, furthermore, have to seek for a very important part of their food in the air, and this they take up under the influence of light, so that it is not surprising to find the influence of environment, making itself felt on every plant, and causing the plant in one way or another to react to its surroundings. It is the particular response to stimuli which we may call irritability. A plant is irritable because it is able to respond.

Higher plants no less than lower are irritable. The shoots of a tree responding to the influence of light, place the leaves in the most advantageous position for the work they have to perform, and the roots, in obedience to the stimulus exerted by gravitation, grow downward into the earth. Tendrils are modified leaves or branches which have become irritable to contact.

A little plant, the ivy-leaved toadflax, found covering limestone walls, affords an interesting instance of irritability. When in blossom, the long flower stalks of the plant turn outward and carry the flowers from underneath the leaves, in order that they may secure the visits of insects, which are necessary for their fertilization. The stalk of the seed vessel is, fortunately for the welfare of the plant, an irritable structure. When flowering is over it no longer seeks the place which is most strongly lighted, but carries the ripening fruit behind the leaves into a little cranny in the wall. Here the seed vessel bursts and discharges its contents, not among coarser weeds, where its growth would be inevitably checked, but upon the soil which has collected in the cranny. Young seedlings soon make their appearance, and, as a result of the flourishing start in life, the ivy-leaved toad-flax is usually the downward direction is due to gravity. The tap root is stimulated by gravitation in such a way that it grows vertically downward, while lateral roots under the action of the same stimulus grow in a very much more oblique direction. If now the plant be tilted, the growing end of the tap root turns vertically downward, while the lateral roots curve in such a manner as to restore what may be called their normal direction. If by any mischance the tap root gets broken off or destroyed, the want is supplied by neighboring lateral roots, which now behave toward gravitation as did the tap root, and change their sloping direction for the vertical. Another instance of gravity causing a member to grow in a definite direction, making an angle with the vertical, is afforded by the daffodil. The daffodil always hangs its head. This depends not on the weight of the flower, but on the stimulus of gravity, for no matter how the stalk may be placed the flower always makes an angle with reference to the direction of gravitation.

When a part of a plant responds to an external stimulus the whole plant need not necessarily know in which direction the stimulus tends. In the case of roots a certain part is increasing in length, and this is the portion in which curvature takes place under the action of the stimulus of gravitation. But this is not the part which knows which way gravity is pulling. Near the tip of the root, just behind the root-cap, is a very small patch of tissue which perceives the stimulus. Cut off the tip of the root, and with it this little patch of irritable tissue, and invert the plant, and the root, which is thus placed uppermost, grows vertically into the air. A very interesting experiment in illustration of this fact, and one easily tried is as follows: Take a thin glass tube shaped like a boot, the toe being rather short and more than two millimetres long. Allow the root of a seedling to grow into this, fixing the plant at the open end of the tube. The root grows vertically down the tube, and when it reaches the toe it turns horizontally along it. The tissue at the tip of the root sends a message up the plant that there is something preventing it from responding to the stimulus of gravity and growing vertically downward, and this is necessitating its horizontal growth. In response to this message the elongating portion curves at right angles in the hope of thus getting the tip of the root round the opposing structure. But it is unconscious that a trick is being played upon it, that the root is fixed in the glass tube unable to move forward, and that the curvature, instead of pushing the root horizontally forward, acts upon the shoot, pushing this horizontally in the opposite direction.

The berries of some foreign species of mistletoe show a remarkable behavior in their endeavors to penetrate the trunk of a tree. The sticky berrie fastens itself to a branch and sends out a root, which, curving over, meets the branch again and forms a saddle-like mass of tissue. It attempts at this point to pierce the bark. If unable to do so the berrie is deposited a little further on. The saddle now becomes detached, and, by another bending of the root, is placed once more on the branch beyond the berrie. If the roots can penetrate in the new station all goes well, but if not the plant performs another somersault. One berrie that was made the object of continued observation performed five jumps in two nights and three days. A number of unfortunate berries were once seen hopelessly traveling along the telegraph wires in Ceylon, vainly endeavoring to find a profitabe resting place. The sensitive plant and the Venus fly trap furnish two examples among many others of restlessly irritable plants which react violently to the stimulus of contact. It is a curious and little-known fact that the Venus fly trap only responds to the stimulus when one of the hairs on the centre of the "trap" is touched twice. No effect is observed after the first touch.

The wonderful purposefulness of these habits and mechanicisms forever dispel the idea that botany treats of inert, objectless plants. It is instead a science of life and living things, each one of which is endowed with marvellous and different powers of making the best of life in the sphere in which it finds itself.—Pharmaceutical Journal.

Old-Time Keelhauling.

Keelhauling was a method of naval discipline particularly in vogue with the Dutch navy, for, as Van Tromp swept the channel with a broom at his masthead, his countrymen sometimes used human sweepers under their keels. In large square rigged vessels the victim was lashed to a spar and had iron weights secured to his feet, spans were secured to this spar, and lines were led from it to the mainyard

Can't Eat

This is the complaint of thousands at this season. They have no appetite; food does not relish. They need the toning up of the stomach and digestive organs, which a course of Hood's Sarsaparilla will give them. It also purifies and enriches the blood, cures that distress after eating, and internal misery only a dyspeptic can know, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling and builds up and sustains the whole physical system. It so promptly and efficiently relieves dyspeptic symptoms and cures nervous headaches, that it seems to have almost "a magic touch."

POULTRY FOR FARMERS.

An Enthusiast Gives Some Practical Pointers of Great Value

First, I would like to ask the question: How much does it cost to arrange suitable buildings and stables for ten cows; how much will it cost to stock them with ten good cows; what does it cost to feed ten cows one year; how much time will it require to properly care for them, and what are the average net receipts for one year? The poultry business is such a little business, that I do not know but what I may go into the milk business. Now, the oldest and best poultrymen we have in the United States have told us time and again, that hens, properly managed (same care and attention you give your cows), will lay from 150 to 175 eggs in a year. Likely the few barnyard hens that you now have, without any care at all, only what time your good wife gets to attend to their wants, but she must first get your meals "right on tick," because you are running a milk farm, and the cows must be milked at just such a time, and the hens don't amount to very much, anyhow? We will take the average number of eggs that a hen will lay in a year, at an average price of 20 cents per dozen, which would amount to $2.50 to $2.90 per hen per year (always sell your old hens just before they molt and you will add 50 cents more to the income), making $3 to $3.40. Now deduct $1.25, the average market value of the food she will eat in one year, and you can see for a "little business" you have made a profit of $1.75 to $2.15 on one hen for one year. I know, Mr. Farmer, that you are now going to ask me how I can get an average price of 20 cents per dozen for the year, and I am going to tell you just how to do it, and if it does not average you more than I have figured, I'll "buy the hat."

taking a bath. Some women say they awaken with cold feet. It is necessary to be warm before taking the bath, but by that I do not mean to put your feet up to a radiator or stove to warm them. I have taken a bath when I have been at a hotel in a small place, where I had to break the ice in the pitcher before I took my bath, but I was entirely warm when I had finished.

"The best plan for any one who is not accustomed to taking a cold bath is to begin with the water tepid. It is well to bathe half the body at first, and the rest later in the day, but never one hour before meals or two hours afterward. The food is digesting after meals, and it is easy to understand why we should not bathe before meals, if we give the matter thought. The object of bathing is to bring the blood to the surface. If we bring the blood to the surface we take it from the stomach, where we need it for digestion. Mrs. Lemcke, who lectured upon food here recently, says that nothing that she can do will bring on an attack of indigestion so soon as to take a bath just before eating, and she is a strong and healthy woman.

"The disadvantage of our mode of living is that we have not much animal heat. The cold bath generates heat. We can resist the cold better after it, and we can wear less clothing. We, most of us, wear too much. Occasionally I find families who for several generations have been accustomed to the use of cold water. They are healthy and rosy and active.

"The hot bath is good for two things. It loosens and clears the impurities from the skin, which, if not removed, would be carried back into the system. The constant relaxation of the skin by frequent hot baths where people are delicate and anaemic is very bad. The bath should always be followed by cold water, which closes the pores of the skin. A skin of fine texture, if constantly accustomed to warm water has the pores opened, and they finally become permanently open.

"A hot bath should be taken at a temperature of from 90 to 95 degrees and the temperature should be decided by a thermometer placed in the water. The hand will not do, and it will not do to dash the thermometer in and remove it immediately.

"Babies and old people may take a bath at from 95 to 100 degrees, but baby should be accustomed to a cold bath early and he soon learns to enjoy it. In some cases where the circulation is bad a bath at 112 degrees may be taken where it is not convenient to take a Turkish bath. I should not advise those as often as some people take them without the advice of a physician.

"Never take a bath when the body is chilled. We hear a great deal about taking a bath when the body is overheated, but it is not so bad as to take a bath when the body is cold. If you are a little heated, it is a favorable time for taking a cold bath. The pores are open, but you must be careful to avoid getting in a draught, as you take it.

"The morning is the best time to take the daily bath, because at that time the body is rested, and we should be in the best physical condition. Hot water drinking an hour before meals should be always after the cold bath, not before. If you are not up in time do not give up the bath on any account, but take the hot water at night before going to bed.

"A salt-water bath is very good when coming in from a ride on the wheel. If not overtired, take this bath immediately. If tired, remove the clothes, put on a flannel gown, and rest first. When there are not two tubs in a bath-room and there seldom are, it is easy to obtain the cold water after the hot bath by reducing the temperature of the water in the tub, which can be quickly done. A spray can be attached to the faucet and used to advantage, and some people prefer to apply the cold water while standing in the warm water and using the cold water on the feet later.

"These directions are all general. They may not all of them agree with each individual. We must all take only what suits ourselves. If there is one thing that does not agree with you, it is not necessarily bad, but it is bad for you, and you must not attempt it."

Scab in Sheep.

It is claimed that the scab in sheep has been completely wiped out in Australia by persistent use of hot baths of sulphur and tobacco, followed by one of sulphur and quicklime, at a temperature of 110 degrees. Whatever the apparent condition of an imported sheep, it must go into the bath. There is no more scab, but it has been eradi-is found at all. Here we have a stalk, responding to the stimulus of light, and a reversal of the influence at different periods of development enabling the plant to accommodate itself to its environment.

All plants only succeed so long as their irritability leads them to adapt themselves to their surroundings. The more lowy organized, by reason of their simpler structure, show greater versatility in this respect than their more complex relatives. It is easy to understand how a mass of protoplasm can more readily adapt itself to varying conditions than a higher plant with its extensive differentiation of tissue.

Bacteria are especially sensitive from this point of view. They can distinguish with very great nicety between the relative suitability of two nutrient solutions. Many of them are capable of perfectly astounding discrimination in this respect. In the same way the white blood corpuscles are attracted by certain foreign—often pathogenic—substances to the spot of the intrusion of bacteria into the blood. Here it is the business of the white corpuscles, if possible, to destroy the bacteria. This attraction shown by many organisms toward chemical substances is known as chemiotaxis.

The spores of ferns and mosses afford a remarkable illustration. The male cells are discharged by the plant and may be seen swimming in all directions in water, when suddenly they will make a dash in the direction of the female organ. This sudden rush is a chemiotactic phenomenon. In the case of ferns malic acid, and in the case of mosses a sugar, is the substance secreted by the female organ, causing the surprising activity of the little swimming antherozoids. Wonderfully dilute solutions are careful of causing the stimulus. Supposing the strength of the solution be gradually increased, the limit is shortly reached, beyond which the solution acts as a repellent instead of an attractive stimulus, causing the plants to swim away as far as they can. If, however, the plants be compelled to live in a strong solution, they will in time get acclimatized and will swim vigorously toward a solution of the attracting salt, although it may very much exceed the normal maximum of attracting strength.

The following is an example of chemiotaxis which a plant has discovered to secure its own ends. Isaria is a fungus which infests silkworms and other caterpillars. Melanospora is another fungus parasitic upon isaria, an extremely intelligent parasite, and unless it happens to meet with a filament of isaria it entirely misses its vocation. Now melanospora apparently secretes some substance which exercises considerable attraction for isaria filaments, for they seek out the apparently harmless spores of melanospora and grow freely over them. When the spore is surrounded by isaria filaments it puts out its germ tube and proceeds to feed upon its host.

Not so obviously intelligent, although it is in reality, is the life of the green plants. The fact that the branches of a tree grow upward into the air and light, while the roots grow downward into the soil, shows that the different parts are endowed with especial irritability. Green plants also possess the power of adapting themselves to circumstances. A potato, when grown in the cellar, in the attempt to get its leaves into the light puts out very much elongated shoots bearing small leaves, for in the darkness leaves are unable to perform the important functions of taking food from the air. This behavior of the potato plant is, then, a direct attempt to overcome disadvantageous conditions by putting all the strength into the work of elongating its stem, if haply it may bring its leaves to the light.

Roots show remarkable intelligence in the way in which they move through the ground. It is necessary for the proper performance of its duties that the root be supplied with oxygen. It has no difficulty in obtaining this oxygen from a healthy soil. In the tropical mangrove swamps the soil consists of a mass of decayed vegetation, where very little oxygen is found among the putrefying substance. The mangrove accordingly adapts itself to circumstances. Its roots begin by growing horizontally in the normal way, but if not aerated they proceed to take a turn upward, grow along in the air for a short distance above the ground, and then go down again. A root may repeat this process at intervals. In the aerial parts is found a permeable tissue which allows of the free circulation of air between the cells.

The entire behavior of roots is influenced by gravitation. If the influence of gravitation in a particular direction be done away with, as by causing a growing seedling to rotate and to receive the gravitation stimulus in all directions by turns the root will grow swayed up to the mainyard, dropped into the sea, and hauled under the ship to the other side. Here is the way Marryat describes its operation in that small cutter where Smallbones suffered and Snarleyow was thought to be a dog fiend:

"This ingenious process," he writes, "is nothing more or less than sending a poor navigator on a voyage of discovery under the bottom of the vessel, lowering him down over the bows, and with ropes retaining him exactly in his position under the keelson, while he is drawn aft by a hauling line until he makes his appearance at the rudder chains, generally speaking quite out of breath, not at the rapidity of his motion, but because when so long under the water he had expended all the breath in his body and induced to take salt water in lieu. * * * In the days of keelhauling the bottoms of vessels were not coppered, and in consequence were all studded with a species of shellfish, called barnacles, which attached themselves; and, as these shells were all open mouthed and with sharp cutting points, those who underwent this punishment (for they were made to hug the keelson of the vessel by the ropes at each side fastened to their arms) were cut and scarred all over the body, as if with so many lancets, generally coming up bleeding in every part. But this was considered rather advantageous than otherwise, as the loss of blood restored the patient if he were not quite drowned, and the consequence was that one out of three. It is said have been known to recover after their submarine excursion."

No words can add to this weird description of a very old and hearty sea way of murdering. All the officers of junior and middle rank, and all the men, whether volunteered, shanghaied or pressed, were underpaid and rob bed.—Harper's Weekly.

for the ones with wire holders, or trays. Paint them up in good style, so that they will always look clean and sweet. Have them lettered with your name and return address. Make arrangements with your express agent for special rates for a year to the city or market you wish to ship to, making arrangements also with a popular grocery man in that city, telling him the quality and style of eggs you are to send him for the year. When gathering your eggs, wash them, so that they will all be clean, as one dirty egg will often hurt the sale of the whole crate. Get you a rubber stamp made with your name, address and date. This stamp will not cost you over 75 cents to $1, and stamp every egg with it as fast as gathered, shipping to your customer once a week on a regular day, and you will find that in this way you will not only get the very highest market price, but your customer will sell your eggs faster than you can furnish them, unless you begin enlarging your plant. One fact you must always keep in mind; that is, it is the "winter eggs," that pay, same as with your cows, and in order to have pullets that will begin laying the first of October, when you must hatch them early and keep them healthy and growing every minute. I have had pullets start laying the 29th of August, but this is really earlier than is needed, for you just want them to take the place of your old layers before they start molting, so that you can sell them at a profit. Pullets that begin laying early will lay all winter if cared for as you look after the wants of your ten cows. I know it is hard to get young chicks early if you depend on the hens to hatch them, but you do not want to wait for the hens to become broody, because sitting hens will hatch 14,000 lice to every chick, and he will be a lousy chick. It don't pay. Keep your hens laying; it does not cost any more, if it does as much, to feed a laying hen as it does to feed a sitting hen. Hatch your chickens by machinery (a good incubator) and keep the hens laying every day. In this way, you can hatch them in large numbers and as early as you wish, and as they get to weigh one and one-half pounds each, you can sort out the cockerels and those of the pullets that you do not like the looks of to keep for layers, and sell them for "springers" or "roasters." They will net you from 30 to 50 cents each. I have sold them for a dollar a pair, alive.—H. H. Blackman, in Practical Farmer.

UNCLE OATCAKE EXPLAINS.

But His Explanation Puzzles His Little Nephew From the City.

"Say, Uncle Oatcake," said the little boy who was staying at the farm, "what makes you go to bed now?"

The time was 8.15 on a winter's evening, and Farmer Oatcake, according to his life-long custom, having wound up the kitchen clock, thrown the cat into a snowdrift, and read a chapter from Hezekiah, was preparing to go to bed, says Truth.

"What makes me go to bed now?" repeated the agriculturist in blank amazement. "Why, so I can git up early."

"But, uncle, now that there is no work on the farm, what is there to do so early?"

"God bless the boy!" said Farmer Oatcake. "Do? Why, light the fires, to be sure."

"But what do you want the fires for so early?"

"Har, har!" laughed the farmer. "Well, now, don't that beat all? If you don't have no fire, how are you going to git breakfast?"

"But, uncle," persisted the boy, "what is the good of having breakfast so early?"

"The good of it!" cried Uncle Oatcake. "By gosh, sonny, of you was to git up at 4 on a winter's morning you wouldn't want to be kept waiting round for breakfast! No, siree!"

"But you said you only got up to light the fire?"

"That's it," assented the farmer.

"And you only light the fire so as to get breakfast?"

"That's right."

"And you only have to get breakfast because you're up so early Aren't you arguing in a circle?"

"Aren't I which?" said the farmer.

"Arguing in a circle—a vicious circle?"

"See here, bub," said Uncle Oatcake, sternly. "I've been working hard on this place for nigh 40 years and, by gun, I ain't going to have a young whippersnapper like you telling me my life's vicious. I git up because I've got to git up, and don't let me hear no more dummed fool questions!"

Saying which, Farmer Oatcake took down his bootjack from its hook and retired.

The club numbers among it members such men as Erastus Wiman, Prof. Roberts, the famous poet, and others, and we feel these expatriated ones will be successful in keeping alive a Canadian sentiment.

An Official Investigation.

Mr. O. B. Sheppard, Fishery Inspector, Toronto, held an investigation on Saturday into charges preferred by Wesley Post, of Hay Bay, against E. H. Sills, Fishery Overseer for this district. The investigation was held at the Campbell House, the complainant charging Mr. Sills with neglect of office and gross offensive partizanship. The latter charge was not pressed, however. A number of witnesses were called. The inspector reserved decision.

A Bright Child.

Word was received here that Gyneth, daughter of Herbert and Nellie Parks, had passed away at her home in Berkeley, California, on Sunday last. Deceased had undergone an operation for appendicitis but was unable to stand the shock. She was was nine years of age and an exceedingly bright and lovable child. Deceased was a grand daughter of W. S. Williams, a former townsman, and of Irvine Parks, of Napanee. Her father is in a low state state of health and much sympathy is expressed for him in his great bereavement.

An Interesting Debate.

On Friday evening of last week a number of Napanee people drove to Hawley to listen to an interesting debate between the clubs of Napanee and Hawley, respectively. After an exciting and somewhat eventful drive through mud, snow and water, (the mud predominating) the Napanee contingent arrived at their destination and after the few preliminaries, incidental to an affair of this kind, had been satisfactorily adjusted, the discussion began. Mr. Cadman, of Hawley, acted as chairman, and W. H. Perry, Napanee, and Chas. Elliott, of Hawley, were selected as judges. The subject: "Resolved that women should have equal franchise with men," was ably handled by both sides and some very good points were brought out. The affirmative was championed by Messrs. Allen, J. P. Anderson and S. McNeil, of Hawley, who advanced numerous good reasons why women should be allowed to vote whether they desired to or not. For the negative Messrs. McCullough, F. Bowerman and Chas. Wilson, of Napanee, demonstrated why the franchise should not be extended to the fair sex. The judges disagreed and were unable to arrive at a decision and it was referred to the chairman who declared in favor of the affirmative.

Hymenial.

A quiet wedding took place at Fisher, Minnesota, on the 22nd, ult, when Mr. Everton Vanluven, of Vanluven Bros., Moscow, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Mabel, eldest daughter of Mr. E. A. Sweet, of that place and a former resident of Lennox. The happy couple arrived in Napanee on Saturday last and left for Moscow in the afternoon where they will take up housekeeping. The EXPRESS joins with their many friends in extending congratulations.

Would be a Loss to Canada.

Mr. H. H. Groff, whose work as a hybridizer of the Gladiolus is recognized by the U. S. trade as the best in America, has received an offer from a prominent and wealthy scientific hybridist so join him in the middle South for the development of several lines of valuable work just out of the experimental stage in conjunction with similar results of Mr. Groff's originating here. A threatened duty under President McKinley, will cut off Mr. Groff's increasing connection with our neighbors and necessitates the consideration of this offer or the abandonment of what has been so successfully begun. He may visit Tennessee after the close of the season.—Simcoe Reformer. This is the gentlemen whom the Napanee Horticultural Society have been getting their Cafna and Gladiolus bulbs from.

Death of an Old Resident.

Another old and esteemed resident of Napanee passed away to her reward on Saturday in the person of Mrs. John B. George, who for thirty-five years has occupied the position of caretaker of the court house. Her death came very unexpectedly. On the day of her demise she appeared to be in her usual health and her daughter, Mrs. Cheetham left her alone in her house while she went out to attend to the marketing. When she returned she found her mother in an unconcious condition having been attacked by a paralytic stroke from which she never rallied. Deceased, whose maiden name was Eliza Derby, was a daughter of the late Wm. D. Derby, of Morven, and was 72 years of age. She was married to the late Jno. B. George in 1845 who preceded her to the tomb twenty-nine years ago. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Cheetham, of Napanee, and Mrs. Fanning, of Belleville, and one son, Wm. George, of Chicago, to mourn the loss of a loving mother. Two sisters, Mrs. Sicker, of Napanee, and Mrs. Chadd, of Picton, are also left to mourn. Deceased was of a genial and kindly personality and was greatly beloved and respected among her wide circle of friends and acquaintances. The funeral took place to the Napanee cemetery on Tuesday, the large concourse which followed the remains to their last resting place testifying to the high esteem in which she was held by all.

Death of Mrs. McPherson.

On Saturday last, Mar. 27th, 1897, Ann Granger, wife of Peter McPherson, died at her home, Newburgh road, about a mile south of Napanee Mills. More than a year ago deceased suspebted she was afflicted with cancer, and when physicians had ex-

The Victorias.

A meeting for the purpose of forming a foot ball club was held at the Royal Hotel on Wednesday evening. There was a large crowd of foot ball enthusiasts present and from all appearances the game will boom here this season. The following officers were appointed. Hon. Pres., Judge Wilkison; Pres. F. Chinneck; Vice Pres., W. Waller; Manager, E. Vanalstine; Captain, F. Grieve; Sec.-Treas., M. B. McDonald; Managing Committee, W. B. Haines, P. Wagar, P. Preston. It was decided to call the Club the Victorias, and steps will be taken towards forming a league to embrace Kingston, Deseronto, Sydenham and Napanee. In all probability a cup will be put up for the teams to contest for, home and home matches to be played. W. H. Hunter of the Royal offers to bear one quarter the cost of the cup, providing it is put up. The foot ball boys intend giving a concert at an early date to provide funds to meet outstanding obligations.

Premiers and Their Premier.

Judge Wilkison, of Napanee, warmly favors the proposal that the premiers of the different provinces constituting the Dominion of Canada go to England in June to attend the celebration in honor of the Queen's Diamond Jubilee. He thinks that no more appropriate way of showing the universal loyalty of Canadians could be adopted than to have the prime minister of each province represent, in his own person at the court of St. James, the devotion of the people of his province. But the judge would go further than this. While as stated, he believes in the project to send the provincial premiers, each as the special personification of the loyalty of his particular province, so to speak, and thus have the constituent portions of the Dominion represented, he suggests that the Dominion, as a whole, should be typified by the presence at the head of the delegation of Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, the first minister of the colony. The presence of Mr. Laurier, representing as he does in the country's parliament, and as he would, at the court of the empress queen, the English Protestant and the French Roman Catholic sections of Canada's population, would of itself be the most emphatic proof of the abiding loyalty of both races and of the nation as a whole.—Whig.

Sons of Tempérance Organization.

Messrs. Bushell and Seymour the Sons of Temperance agents now at work in this county, are meeting with excellent success, not only as regards large meetings, but in regard to effecting permanent organizations. Their meetings last week at Centreville, Tamworth, Marlbank, Roblin and Selby were all very successful and encouraging On Sunday evening they addressed a very large audience in the Western Methodist church here after the close of the regular service. They will probably hold a couple of public meetings in the Town Hall soon, of which good notice will be given. On Saturday evening they organized a new division at Selby with thirty two charter members. The officers are: Ira B. Hudgins, W. P; Mrs. C. W. Dean, W.A.; Annnie Hudgins, Supt. of Y.P.; Garrett M. Neely, R. Scribe; Minnie Allen, A.R.S.; Fanny McGuiness, F S.; Thomas I. Winter, Treas.; W. H. Limbert, Chap.; W. T. Hudgins, Con.; Ida Hudgins, A.C., Lesslie Ballance, I. S.; Archie Sxsmith, O.S.; Rev. W. H. Limbert, P.W.P.; Anson Rose, D. Deputy. Meeting on Tuesday evenings. On Monday evening a division was oaganized at Napanee Mills. The officers are: J. T. ## Tendered a Banquet.

On Monday morning Mr. Thos. J. Bald left for his home in Penetanguishene where he has secured a lucrative position. Mr. Bald has resided in Napanee for a number of years and was justly esteemed and popular. He took an interest in all manly sports and will be greatly missed in hockey, baseball, and football circles. For the past two years he has had charge of the tinsmith department of M. S. Madole's business and his employer felt that he could not allow him to take his departure from town without some recognition of his goodwill. Accordingly he decided to tender him a banquet on the eve of his departure and about 10 o'clock Saturday evening, a number of friends congregated at Queen's Restaurant where an excellent repast was in waiting. After due justice had been rendered to the oysters and toothsome edibles provided, Mr. A. E. Paul in a neat speech, explained the reasons that led up to their assembling there that evening, and called upon Mr. W. E. Wilson, who read the following address:—

Thos. J. Bald:—

Dear Sir:—The best of friends must part and to-night we must bid you good-bye and wish you good luck in your new home. During the two years you have been with us we have learned to respect you very much and have formed a high opinion of your integrity, industry and gentlemanly conduct. Your interest in your trade and your endeavors to increase the business of the firm have been duly appreciated, and to-night you part with your fellow employees in the workshop, with your friends and associates in town and with your employer, with the best of good wishes. Our hope and wish for you is that you may find as good and true friends in your new field of labor as you leave behind and we shall ever be glad to hear from you and learn of your success. We take this opportunity of saying adieu. Signed,

M. S. Madole,
W. E. Wilson,
P. A. Woodcock,
H. J. Thompson,
Robert Bennett,
D. Davis,
Chas. Byrnes,
Jos. Bennett,
A. E. Paul,
J. H. Frisken.

Mr. Bald, although visibly affected, made a suitable reply in which he referred to his regret in parting with his fellow workmen, with whom he had been on the best of terms. He paid a high compliment to Mr. Madole, as an employer. It had never been his good pleasure to work for a more just and kind "boss".

Mr. A. E. Paul followed and referred to the good feeling that had always existed between Mr. Madole and his employees. Mr. M. S. Madole made an excellent speech in which he referred to the relations which he thought should exist between employer and employee. He had always endeavored to be one of "the boys" and had tried to conduct his business so that there would be a mutality of interest between himself and his employees. Mr. Bald left his employ with the best of good feelings existing between them and he would always be pleased to hear of his success.

The press brought short addresses from Chas. Stevens, sr., M. B. McDonald, and A. E. Clarke.

Kindred Industries was responded to by Mr. Alex. Lafferty.

The ladies elected speeches from such well-known champions as Messrs, Geo. H. Thompson, D. Davis, and Geo. A. Thompson.

The employees was responded to by Messrs. Robt. Bennett, Jos. Bennett, P. A. Woodcock, Herbert J. Thompson, W. E. Wilson, and Charles Burns. Short addresses were delivered by Thos. Oliver and J. Frisken. The singing of Auld Lang Syne brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

nature of the disease she was utterly discouraged. However she consented to an operation. From that time she seemed to regain her health. After a few months there were indications of cancer again. During the winter her arm was broken, and her mother, residing with her, died about this time. The shock and suffering seemed to be too much for her. Deceased's general health failed rapidly until death put a period to her sufferings. Mrs. McPherson was in her 55th year, and had always been a remarkably healthy person. Beside her husband she leaves two sons, aged seventeen and nineteen years respectively. She was a daughter of the late Artimus Granger, and was born near the home where she breathed her last. Kind hearted and charitable she will be missed by her neighbors as well as her family. She was glad to leave her sufferings and go to rest. Trusting in the Lord Jesus as her friend and Saviour she had no fears regarding "that other life." Mr. A. Granger, a brother from Minnesota, arrived a few weeks ago which seemed to cheer her greatly. The funeral took place on Tuesday, 30th inst., Rev. McCullough officiating. The remains were deposited in Napanee vault.

A NOTABLE EVENT.

(From the Ottawa Free Press, 25th March 1897.)

The Famine Fund sent to the Montreal Star has turned fifty thousand dollars, representing subscriptions from upwards of two hundred thousand schools children, and nearly one hundred thousand church members of all faiths, besides great and small subscriptions from thousands of private citizens. We do not remember ever to have seen so extraordinary a subscription anywhere. For many years to come the remarkable spontaneity with which this subscription was supported, its almost universal character and the right good will with which the subscriptions were bestowed for the cause, will be looked back to by all Canadians with genuine pride. Besides the relief that this fund provides for India, it provides a substantial interest in the whole Empire and it thus serves the double purpose of philanthropy and patriotism. We do not believe that any person ever imagined that it was possible for any one agency to raise so large a sum and to enlist the sympathies of such an enormous number of people as has been done by the Star.

A FASHIONABLE SPRING SUIT Or OVERCOAT

Among the new Woollens purchased for the spring trade are some fine Scotch Cheviots and Worsted Suitings and Overcoatings in the newest shades and patterns.

We use Linings and Trimmings of guranteed good quality and put into them our best skill and experience in tailoring.

You can visit any store and you will not find an assortment of Suitings and Overcoatings to match ours, nor will you match our prices.

D. J. Hogan & SON,

Sole Agent for the Wilkinson and Henry Carter English Hats.

Tailoring Extraordinary

Six patterns in Spring Tweeds, all light colours, but neat and stylish designs. The cloths are those which sell at $1 per yard. We offer choice of them made to measure, good trimmings, and guaranteed perfect fit,

At $10 a Suit

Or Bicycle Suit (Coat and Knickers) of same

At $6 a Suit

This is the most unprecedented bargain in good goods that has ever been open to you. If there isn't a saving of $4 on every Suit we offer at $10, don't buy.

J. A. CATHRO, Cutter.

The New Hats

Are the newest hats in the hat business. They are absolutely right in style, and they are cheaper than regular prices. You might as well save a quarter or half a dollar, and have a neater hat as well.

Fedoras from 50c. upwards.
Bennet's English Stiff Hats, $2.50

Twenty-Five Cent Ties

Two for Twenty-Five Cents.

Tells you the history of the biggest tie sale you've seen. Only they weren't all twenty-five cent ones, there were dozens worth 50c. But there were nearly 1200 ties to start with. Plenty yet to pick from. Many customers take eight for a dollar, because they are new and stylish goods. Those are the wise ones. If you haven't had your share don't be too long about it.

New Clothing.

New Suits for Men.
New Suits for Boys.

Men's Blue Serge Suits ..... $2.90
Men's Tweed Suits .... a bargain ..... 5.00

We've stacks of well-made, neat-fitting Spring Clothing, made by houses whose name is a guarantee of reliable work. They'll please you none the less because the price is low. That is unusual, but it is true. Clothing prices are a wonder, even to clothing dealers, and the price at which good work is done in making clothing is very much lower than the price of oats or barley. Come in and see how we sell good clothing.

Spring Carpets.

The final shipment of the Spring Carpets came this week, and makes our stock complete in all lines for the season. The kinds include British Brussels Carpets in four and five frame, Canadian Axminster Carpets, best Tapestry Carpets, medium and low-grade Tapestries, two and three-ply Wools, Union and Hemps. The prices begin, at 10c. for Hemps, 25c. for Unions 68c. for Wools, 75c. for Brussels. The patterns are everything that they ought to be for this Spring's trade. A look at them costs nothing, and will convince you that your own town can do BEST for for you in Carpets, not merely as well as the city stores but MATERIALLY BETTER as regards value, just as well as regards style.

Pattern Dresses.

A big stock of them. Exquisite weaves and designs, charming color effects. We don't believe anyone can show you such a selection, or such trimmings to match them. There are most beautiful dresses here for four or five dollars—the twelve dollar patterns of other days couldn't hold a candle to them. To do the best possible buying for your Easter outfit you simply MUST see our Dress Goods.

Fancy Japanese Silks.

More of them than any two Napanee houses can show you. Patterns that are nowhere else. Prices begin at 25c. a yard—and at 43c., 58c., 72c., we show Silks that are usually shown at much higher prices.

Another Corset Bargain.

Only some five dozen of the P. C. Corset "Dora," in grey only. It is probably the fastest selling 75c. Corset in the country today. We bought this lot so that it is possible to sell them

At 50c. a Pair.

Small sizes, 18 to 24. Ladies, it is worth your while to SEE JUST WHAT THIS CORSET IS LIKE.

The Twenty-Five Cent Corsets

Are a revelation. People who never bought a Corset at the price before are using them and like them. There may not be any next week.

A Former Resident.

The remains of the late Mrs. Dr. Mavetey were brought here from Peoria, Ills., on Thursday and deposited in the Western cemetery. Deceased was a daughter of the late Jos. B. Lucas, and a sister of Mrs. Silas F. Vrooman. She was well and favorably known in this district and greatly respected for her many estimable qualities. Her husband at one time carried on a practice at Napanee and also at Kingston. Her remains were followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of sorrowing friends and acquaintances, the Revs. Crossley and Dr. McDiarimid taking part in the services. The Rev. Mr. Mavetey, of Grandby, Quebec, brother-in-law of deceased was also in attendance at the funeral.

Died In Early Youth.

After four weeks of suffering with typhoid fever, Lilly McConnell, beloved daughter of Mr. James McConnell, passed peacefully away on Saturday, March 27th, 1897 in her sixteenth year, that period when life looks brightest. One of the healthiest and brightest girls in the neighborhood, it is the more sorrowful that she should droop and die so soon. At the first confirmation held in St. Jude's Church, Napanee Mills, she received the sacred rite of confirmation and did "continue Christ's faithful soldier and servant unto her life's end." Always at sabbath school and church, a regular attendant at the holy communion, living such a life as she knew her Lord and Master would have her live when the call came she went without a murmur, without a fear. She had been attending Newburgh High School since summer vacation. It is an evidence of her popularity, that the institution closed on Monday and the pupils attended the funeral which was held in the church Napanee Mills. The rector, Rev. F. D. Woodcock, assisted by Rev. G. W. Swayne, of Selby, conducted the service which was solemn and impressive. The incumbent charged her fellow students to take the death of their school-mate as a warning and to live such lives as would make them ready to go whenever the summons came. The Sunday school of St. Jude's presented a wreath of "Calla lilies." Newburgh school also sent a beautiful wreath. There were other handsome designs of flowers sent by friends. The pall bearers were H. Nesbit, H. McKim and R. Lott, of N. H. C., R. Pybus, J. Beck, H. Morgan, of Napanee Mills. Mr. E. J. Reid acted as manager. The heart broken parents have the sympathy of all in their irreparable loss.

GRIEF AND WORRY.

Cause Heart Troubles.

A well and favorable known lady of Mitchell gives an account of her sufferings:

"Grief at the death of near and dear relatives a few years ago caused nervous trouble and general debility. Prior to that time I was in excellent health, quite stout and very strong. With my sad bereavements I became excessively nervous, my appetite failed, I lost flesh and strength, and my mind and nerves were in such a state that I found it almost impossible to compose myself to sleep. When I did drop into slumber I would wake up in a short time trembling violently and in a cold perspiration, and could not get to sleep again that night. My memory became clouded and fickle. I had great pain through my temples, and my heart frequently seemed to stop its pulsations. Then again I had fainting spells so that my friends thought I was a hypochondriac. Fortunately I procured a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills from Mr. S. A. Hodge, the well-known druggist of this place, and commenced taking them last spring. To my gratitude they performed a complete cure. My appetite is now good. I have gained in flesh, health and strength, and feel cheerful and happy. I sleep well, and have now no trouble with my heart or nerves whatever. These pills are a great cure for heart and nerve troubles as well as a splendid tonic for the entire system, and I am very glad to recommend them to all sufferers from similar complaints (Signed) Miss W. ### Presented With a Purse and Address.

Mr. F. S. Rockwell, who leaves in a few days for D. L. Moody's Bible Institute, Chicago, was presented by the members of the Eastern Methodist church with a purse, containing over $30 and a highly eulogistic address on Wednesday evening last. In referring to the vacancy which will be created by Mr. Rockwell's departure the address says: "Our comrade, on whose activity and energy we leaned hard, is leaving our ship, and the stroke-oar he pulled so oft and effectively is left swinging aimlessly on the rowlock." "Permit us to assure you that the church in its various departments, has gained by the free gift of your versatile powers and by your untiring religious zeal." The address refers to Mr. Rockwell's work in the Epworth League, in the Sunday school, in the social services and the choir and is signed on behalf of the church by N. A. McDiarmid, Pastor. On behalf of the E. L. of C. E. by Laura M. Hogle, President; Annie W. Cliffe, Sec. On behalf of the Sunday school by S Gibson, Supt.; C. W. Wartman, Ass't. Supt.; W. F. Hall, Rec. Steward.

The manner in which the Chief undertakes to enforce the regulation prohibiting the riding of bicycles on the sidewalk is coming in for much uncomplimentary comment in some quarters. It is stated that Jerry is conveniently blind when "certain head parties," are sporting themselves on the sidewalk, while he is unduly officious with others who are not in possession of a pull. The regulation should be enforced without fear, favor or partiality.
